If you want to have a break but don't fancy splashing out on a holiday abroad, holidaying in the UK is a great option. Whether you think you'd like to take advantage of one of the many motorhomes for sale UK or are looking for a vacation in a luxurious hotel, the UK has many great destinations for holiday makers.

A motorhome or touring caravan could be right for you if you think you'd like to stay in the UK for your holidays for a number of years to come. A motorhome or touring caravan gives you the option to travel almost anywhere in the country, whilst offering a sense of home comfort. Having a motorhome means that you do not have to stay put during your holiday, or have multiple holidays in one place year after year. It also means that, after the initial expense of the vehicle itself, you will be able to stay at one of the many holiday parks across the country fairly cheaply.

If you've found somewhere in this country that you know you've enjoyed for many years and are likely to continue to do so, it may be a good idea to purchase a permanent holiday home. Many of the UK's seaside resorts have large amounts of holiday property available although demand may be high in some areas. There is also plenty of holiday property on offer in other popular areas, such as Cornwall and North Yorkshire.

If you want to treat yourself and have a bit of money spare, a luxurious stay in a four or five star hotel could be right for you. Here you can enjoy being pampered, whether you're after a city break in London or Manchester, or a glamorous stay in a country manor.

The UK also has plenty of options for families looking for an entertaining break. Those looking for rollercoasters and rides can head to one of the many theme parks, like Alton Towers or Chessington.

If you don't think your family is right for a holiday at a theme park, there's plenty more on offer. Perhaps you could try kitesurfing or even antique hunting.
